

More Aid Promised Schools

'Poorer' Districts Can Look for Increase From Dewey's Plan on Education

Record Budget

Education Section Jumps $27,500,000; Other Costs to Run High

By HARRY O'DONNELL
Albany, N. Y., Nov. 22 (AP)—"Poorer" school districts today were promised increased state aid amounting to "millions" by Governor Dewey, who said rising education appropriations would help push a record 1948-49 state budget over $700,000,000.

Dewey said financial assistance to wealthier school districts must not be reduced through a pending revision of the Friedman formula by which state money is apportioned to local education.

He said the education section of the budget specifically would jump $27,500,000 plus "substantial additional sums" in unestimated millions.

The $27,500,000, the Governor added, will "continue" funds appropriated from the surplus last winter to help defray teacher pay raises and increased aid to central schools.

The unestimated increases will "provide for the equalization factor" in revision of the Friedman formula and for "large additional sums" for higher education," Dewey said.

The Governor, at a news conference:

1. Said recommendations of the Young commission studying the need for a state university "will cost money, whatever they are," a remark interpreted by some sources as hinting at a possible "compromise" solution to the controversial issue.

Up to Local Boards—

2. Refused to be drawn out as to whether increased education appropriations would provide specific aid for another pay boost for teachers, saying only that local boards were free to raise salaries whenever they chose.

The Friedman formula, apportioning state aid to education primarily on the basis of local wealth, as measured by assessed value of real property, and pupil attendance. It provides more aid for the poorer districts and conversely less for the wealthier.

Dewey pointed out that state aid to local education amounted to about $100,000,000 annually when he took office in 1943 and that through revision of the formula, plus special appropriations, the total this year was about $150,000,000.

This total will be increased next year by integration of $25,500,000 of the $27,500,000 appropriation increase into the formula as well as "other" millions. Dewey termed necessary to "complete equalization."

No Reduction
Dewey, stressing the need of more assistance to less wealthy districts, said there should be no reduction for any district and that revision of the formula would provide a "floor" under existing aid to their districts.

Dewey said the amount of the increase in aid could not be estimated until his special committee on education, which recommended teacher pay raises and a minimum salary schedule last year as well as eventual revision of the formula, completed individual studies of the state's 5,000 school districts.

Action probably will be taken by the 1948 legislature.

A legislator from one wealthy county, Republican Senator Philip W. Williamson of Westchester, contends his county is treated unfairly by the formula.

Although Dewey refused to comment directly on the possibility of another teacher pay boost through the proposed increase in state aid, sources conversant with the question noted that many poor districts had difficulty in meeting the state-mandated salary minimums enacted last winter. They contend that increased aid in many cases will only ease the burden created by the last raises.

Dewey said the state-mandated increase was "partly" the reason for difficulties in poorer districts, adding that "basically" their problem resulted from a shortage of teachers.

Higher Education View
The 30-member university commission headed by Owen D. Young is expected to report soon. Dewey said he did not know what his reaction would be to a recommendation for establishment of a state university as such.

He commented there was "need for activity in that area" and "maybe" there was need for more professional schools, possibly dentistry, and for junior colleges.

Attorney James G. Connelly Named Corporation Counsel

JAMES G. CONNELLY

Police Will Be Paid Full Amount

Will Get Two Checks Next Pay Day, December 1

William Singer, member of the Board of Police Commissioners, disclosed today that members of the Kingston Police Department will be paid the full amount due them under the new salary schedule voted by the police referendum November 4.

Each member of the force will receive two checks on the next pay day, December 1, Singer said. One check will be for salary according to the old schedule, and the other for the difference.

Reason for this, he explained, is that the Common Council has not yet appropriated the necessary funds to meet the pay increase, and it will be necessary for the department to borrow money to meet the additional expense. He emphasized, however, that all members of the department will receive full pay under the new schedule on December 1.

At a meeting of the Commissioners Friday evening, a resolution was passed expressing the hope of the board that Chief Ernest A. Boss have a speedy recovery. Routine accident reports were received by the board.

Won't Ask Recount

Mincola, N. Y., Nov. 22 (AP)—Martin Held, American Labor party candidate who was defeated by three votes for a post on the Long Beach, N. ## Temporary Holiday Workers Covered by Social Security

Temporary or part time workers in stores, shops, offices, etc., during the Christmas season, are included in the coverage of the Federal old-age and survivors insurance program and therefore need social security account cards, Jerome S. Blumberg, manager of the Kingston office of the Social Security Administration, stated today. Employers are required to report the wages and numbers of these employees, in their regular quarterly tax and informational returns.

Housewives, high school students, teachers, and others who have not previously worked under the social security system, are affected by this coverage. They need to know that they should have a card, where to get it, what to do with it, and how to safeguard it.

Those who have never had a card should apply in person or by mail for one at the Social Security Administration field office, Central

Appointment Announced by Mayor-Elect Newkirk; Was Major in Army, Commands Legion

James G. Connelly, former army major, current commander of Kingston Post American Legion, and prominent young local attorney will be corporation counsel under Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk when he takes office on January 1.

Announcement of this effect was made today by the successful Republican candidate in the recent election, who defeated William F. Edelmuth, present three-term Democratic mayor, by a majority of 252.

Mayor-elect Newkirk said he named Attorney Connelly to his cabinet at this early date in order to give him an opportunity to familiarize himself with the duties of the office while awaiting to assume the position.

The new appointee is a brother of Vincent G. Connelly, assistant district attorney, and Kingston city chairman of the Republican party, who directed the successful campaign of Mr. Newkirk for the mayoralty post. The two brothers are law partners with offices at 277 Fair street.

Mr. Connelly is a son of former alderman of the Ninth ward and Mrs. James E. Connelly of 65 West O'Reilly street. He is married to the former Betsy Miller and they reside at 58 St. James street.

Attorney Connelly was one of the first professional men to be inducted into the Selective Service Act, entering the army in March 1941. Upon completion of his basic training at Fort Dix, N. J., he was assigned to a searchlight battery at Fort Tilden, Cal. Accepted as a candidate for Officers Candidate School, he received his commission as second lieutenant in June 1942, at Camp Davis, N. C. He was assigned to duty at Orlando, Fla.

He served as assistant plans and training officer and instructor and trained searchlight battalions in fighter-searchlight tactics at Orlando. In November 1944, he was assigned to duty as a legal adviser with the Central Flying Training Command and remained there until transferred overseas in early spring of 1945.

On Army Legal Staff
During his tour of duty overseas, Major Connelly was assistant staff judge advocate with the European Division, Air Transport Command. His attainment of the rank of major was considered an example of the strict application of his time, energy and talent, and vivid interest in military affairs.

Attorney Connelly's army record, revealing his flare for getting things done, and handling all situations with dispatch, was a

Senate Winds Up Its Inquiry Into Meyers' Dealings

Entire Record Will Be Sent to Prosecuting Offices for Possible Criminal Actions

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—The Senate war investigating subcommittee closed its inquiry into the tangled wartime dealings of Bennett E. Meyers today with an announcement by Chairman Ferguson (R-Mich.) that the entire record is being sent to prosecuting officers for possible criminal actions.

The committee wound up the hearings after hearing General Henry H. (Hap) Arnold, wartime head of the air forces, testify that "on the evidence before you, a high ranking officer has disgraced his uniform and his rank."

Arnold dramatically thanked the Senate investigating group for discovering what he called a "rotten apple in our barrel" as a "wonderful service to the army, the air forces and the nation."

Meyers is a retired major general and during the war was deputy chief of procurement (purchasing) for the army air force.

Ferguson said the committee would take these actions:

1. Ask the regular Senate banking committee to investigate speculation in government bonds.

2. Ask Attorney General Clark and government tax officials to examine the whole record and "take such steps as are necessary."

3. Ask the federal district attorney in Washington to examine the testimony of Meyers and others on the "question of perjury."

Ferguson reminded that the special Senate committee is not a court and cannot prosecute. But he said that Congress, courts and the nation could not endure if "false swearing" is permitted.

Senator Hatch (D-N. M.) broke in to say he agreed and recommended testimony in the case be referred to the U. S. district attorney here for action on "this question of perjury."

Ferguson said the committee will continue its inquiry into wartime contracts but plans no additional immediate public hearings.

Arnold told the committee that during the war he accepted Meyers' word that he no longer held investments from which he might profit due to his high position in the air forces.

In saying he took Meyers' word, Arnold was referring to testimony before the committee that Meyers' Continued on Page Five

Town Clerk, 90, Has Been on Job Since '01

Already having served in public office longer than any other official in the state, George F. Elston of Unionville was re-elected this month to the office of clerk of the Town of Minisk, Orange county, which he has held continuously since 1901. He passed his ninety-first birthday last April 21.

Elston's first venture into public office came in 1892, when he was elected justice of the peace. In addition to the clerk's job, he has served as village treasurer, Unionville Bank president, telephone company director, and Presbyterian Church trustee.

Authority for the statement that he is the public officer with the longest service in the state is a note which he received recently from Frank C. Moore, state comptroller.

Minor Fires on Friday Keep Department Busy

Members of the Kingston Fire Department were kept busy Friday with several minor fires. At 3:25 p. m. a grass fire was reported near Lawrence street. Engine 1 responded, and the fire was extinguished with Indian pumps and brooms.

Returning from this fire, the firemen spotted a fire in a sawdust pile on the site of the old ice house at the end of Lawrence street. This fire was extinguished with water from two hose lines.

At 5:41 p. m., a telephone alarm called firemen to the apartment of Dorothy Harper, 120 Prospect street. It was found that some chewing wax had caught on fire on top of a stove, and some children, who were alone in the room at the time, became alarmed and ran to a neighbor's house. The neighbor telephoned the fire department. No damage was caused, firemen reported.

An overheated furnace caused the auditorium at Temple Emanuel to become filled with smoke and fumes, and firemen were called at 7:05 p. m. Cause of the smoke was the fact that there was no water in the boiler, firemen said.

Came From Wales With Parents at Age of 7; Was Prominent in Moose Lodge

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—James J. "Puddler Jim" Davis, who came to America as the seven-year old son of poor Welsh immigrants and rose to become Secretary of Labor and senator from Pennsylvania, died early today of a kidney ailment.

Davis has been sick for several months, and had been in nearby Tacoma Park Sanitarium since September. He was 74 years old. Largely self-educated, Davis started to work in a Sharon, Pa., steel mill as his father's helper when he still was in his early teens.

When he was 16, he became a steel "puddler"—a job of which he was proud of for the rest of his life, and which earned him his nickname.

Davis later moved to Elwood, Ind., and there, as a member of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, first entered politics.

At about the same time, he joined the Loyal Order of Moose, becoming director-general in 1906, and holding that position until his death.

He was appointed Secretary of Labor by President Harding in 1921. Nine years later, after serving under Presidents Coolidge and Hoover, he quit to accept appointment as Republican Senator from Pennsylvania.

He was re-elected for full six-year terms in 1932 and 1938, but was defeated in a close race in 1944 by the present incumbent, Francis J. Myers, a Democrat.

Field Constructed by Government During War as Auxiliary to Stewart Field

Resolutions

Taxes and Assessments for Annual Budgets in Townships

The Galeville Airport, which was constructed by the government during the war as an auxiliary airfield, is to be taken over by the County of Ulster from the War Assets Administration for $1. It will be leased by the county to someone for operation. Already it is understood an offer has been received for leasing the field.

Galeville Airfield takes in about 600 acres of land about four miles north of Wallkill, and was used during the war as an auxiliary to the Army Air Forces' Stewart Field. On the field are two 3,500 foot concrete runways together with a large concrete parking apron and small operation buildings.

The field will be taken over from the War Assets Administration with the understanding that it is to be maintained and in the event of need, it will be turned back to the War Department.

The offer to turn the Galeville field over to the county was made in a communication to the Board of Supervisors from the War Assets Administration Friday night. It was voted to accept the offer and authority was given Chairman Edward E. Murray to execute the transfer.

County on Foxes

More communications were received by the Board Friday evening relative to the fox bounty question. The Roundout Rod and Gun Club opposed the removal of the bounty on foxes, holding that foxes did much damage, among poultry flocks. Exports Township Sportsmen's Club also sent a communication favoring retention of the bounty.

In a communication from Carlton B. King, executive secretary of the Federated Sportsmen's Club of Ulster County, the county was also requested retained. Mr. King, who is county assistant in conservation, also referred to information he had gained at a recent agriculture meeting at Dry Brook, town of Hardenburgh. Mr. King stated that he had been informed by John F. Fairbairn of Arkville that a Delaware county dairyman had been required to destroy four valuable cows recently because of rabies which had apparently come from foxes. Mr. King pointed out in his communication that the danger from rabies in live stock was great and every possible means of keeping down the fox population should be taken.

A report of the Committee on Commissioners of Elections was made stating claims in the sum of $666.44 were proper and it was moved that this sum be levied on the county. Over

The Committee on Errors in Assessments reported several erroneous assessments and it was moved that they be stricken from the year 1946. The Supreme Court recently reduced the assessment in the town of Hurley against the city's reservoir property for the year 1946. There must be refunded the sum of $14,475.01 of which the town must raise $4,135.72 and the county $10,339.29. There was also a claim of $115.46 made by the Central New England Railroad for interest on a refund of over $5,000 made last year. The town of Lloyd's share is $35.87. Other claims reported were:

Maynard DeWitt, $77.59; Max Wunderlich, $6.46; Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation, $66.46; Kathryn M. Taylor, $17.52; Anna C. Seism, $26.50; Cook-Taylor Post, American Legion of Elleville, $85.43; Marie DiPieri, $83.87; Dwight Divine & Sons, $38.18. Total, $14,990.60. The above sums are to be levied against the towns and county, the town shares being Hurley, $4,135.72; Lloyd, $35.87; Marbletown, $185.72.

Walden Phone Co. to Raise Money to Improve Service

New York, Nov. 22 (Special)—The Walden Telephone Company, serving communities in Orange and Ulster counties was authorized today by the Public Service Commission to issue bonds and preferred stock aggregating $220,000 for the purpose of paying off outstanding loans and to provide for new construction and improved service.

Of the total to be issued, $180,000 will be in first mortgage bonds bearing interest at 3.15 per cent per annum and maturing in 25 years. The balance of the new financing is to consist of 500 shares of preferred stock with a dividend rate of 4 1/2 per cent, to be sold by the company at not less than $100 a share.

Both issues are to be disposed by the company not later than December 1st. The bonds will be redeemable at a price of 103 per cent of par up to October 31, 1949. Thereafter the premium is to be scaled progressively to par at maturity. The preferred stock will be redeemable at $103 per share for the period to July 1, 1954, and thereafter at $102 per share.

Of the new funds, $80,000 is to be used to pay off short term loans. The balance is to be for construction purposes and to defray the cost of the financing.

Authorization for the issuance of the new securities was granted by the P.S.C. on the basis of a report by Hearing Examiner Ernest A. Bamman, who held hearings on the company's petition.

During the proceeding the company presented testimony covering its construction program. This called for the building of a new central office exchange at Walden in place of the present building, additional central office equipment at the Walden and other exchanges, installation of aerial cable partially in replacement of present open wire circuits, and additional telephone equipment.

On behalf of the company it was also testified that the new construction would permit the accommodation of about 540 additional customers. The company now has a considerable number of applications for service which it is unable to fill due to lack of facilities.

Everything Wrong With First Bonus Application

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 22 (AP)—The first formal application for a veterans' bonus has been received and thrown out by the State Bonus Bureau.

Everything was wrong with it, Director Leo V. Lanning said today.

The application was made too soon and on a sample form clipped from a newspaper.

Lanning warned again that bonus applications cannot be executed legally before January 1, effective date of the constitutional amendment approved by the people November 4 to authorize the bonus.

He added that official application forms would be distributed late in December.

Lanning said the premature application was accompanied by a miniature size photograph of the required discharge papers and service records. He emphasized again that the photostats must be actual size.

New York, (NEA)—Here are two young evening dresses slated to keep a holiday stage line moving.

Both owe their witchery to two postwar triumphs in the textile field. One triumph is lurex, a new non-tarnishable metallic cloth. The other is flame-proof nylon.

Twenty-one yards of non-inflammable powder pink nylon in a diamond-patterned tulle make the cloud-like dress, left. Designed to extract compliments at a holiday dance, this dress has a molded bodice and an off-the-shoulder neckline ruffled with ruching, a detail which is echoed in a hipline bustle and full-flaring skirt.

The gold and white Empire evening gown, right, is another Emily Wilkens design. This dress, also slated for holiday triumphs, combines diaphanous white nylonette with white taffeta, striped with non-tarnishable lurex.

IMPORTANCE

A question really not to be answered definitely without knowledge of personal circumstances is the one asking: "What is the proper length of time a widow or widower should wait before remarrying?"

Correctly, the proper length of time is a little more than a year. The shortest time ever approved is six months.

Cover on Means 'Not Yet Read'
Dear Mrs. Post: When placing a new book in one's library, should the paper cover be removed?

Answer: It will look better off, of course! But certainly you may do as you please. (I personally leave the cover on until I have read the book.)

Your Wife Is Right
Dear Mrs. Post: A business associate of mine has invited me to his wedding, but has not mentioned anything about my wife and children coming, too. My wife refuses to go. She feels that she was not invited or some mention would have been made of her. I feel that it is taken for granted that where a married man goes, so goes his family. Will you settle this difference?

Answer: I am sorry to say that you are wrong. It is considered proper to keep one's personal and business acquaintances separate. In fact you need merely consider the difficulties of many to make adequate plans if each business friend invited were free to bring an indefinite number of family members!

Meaning of R.S.V.P.

Dear Mrs. Post: I received an invitation to a shower which has "R.S.v.p." and a telephone number on it. It always has been my practice to respond to such an invitation whether or not I was going. When I called to accept this invitation, I was told by the person answering the telephone that it was necessary to reply only if I was not going. This embarrassed me very much. Will you tell me please just exactly what "R.s.v.p." on an invitation means so that I will know what to do in the future?

Answer: It means, "Reply, if you please." Therefore, you are right and whoever answered the telephone was quite wrong.

Many questions are asked about visiting cards. Mrs. Post has written a book, "Visiting Cards," which is available in paperback form. To obtain a copy, send 5 cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to her, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N.Y. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer the question.

NEW PEACE EFFORT

A peace movement started in Cleveland, O., a short time ago is meeting with singularly enthusiastic support. It is called "World Security Workers." Its aim is to afford an instrument through which masses of peace-loving people in every country can make themselves heard before the leaders of their governments.

While no exact blue print of procedure is set forth as yet, the idea of the new group is for a centralized world government with a military arm to enforce peace. The inspiration for the association was born in the family of Capt. John Putnam, Jr., a combat flyer lost in the war over Europe.

Already thousands of people have signed up. Ministers in three large churches used the association and its goals as sermon subjects on Armistice Sunday, and on Armistice Day rallies of college students were addressed by Protestant, Catholic and Jewish clergy setting forth the peace plan. The chairman is Federal Judge Robert N. Wilkin, an impressive, scholarly man, author of "Eternal Law." Dr. Albert Einstein in a broadcast from Princeton endorsed the undertaking.

Certainly there will be millions of people who will agree with Capt. Putnam's parents that enough boys have died in wars. It's time people demanded peace.

A BOOK THAT WENT UP

One hundred years ago James Lenox, a New York business man and famous book collector, went mad. At least his friends shook their heads, and said sadly that he had paid "a mad price" for a book. The book was the so-called Gutenberg Bible, the first printed book, done by the inventor of printing, Johann Gutenberg, and the price was $2,600.

The last recorded auction price of a Gutenberg Bible was $106,000, and the dealer who bought it resold it for $160,000. How many stocks have appreciated from $2,600 to $160,000 in 100 years?

This does not mean that all old books are worth like amounts, or even that they are worth anything, at all. Book values, like those of other commodities, are regulated by supply and demand. The supply of a certain old book may be scarce, but there has to be some special reason to make a buyer want a particular book, for it to command any sort of price. Mere age is not enough.

Take your time in winter time, because ice is just plain slippery. And that's dangerous when you're driving too fast. So reduce your speed to conform to the condition of the road. Expect the unexpected. Keep your mind on the road ahead, so you will be ready for that emergency around the next corner. You can't stop on an icy dime.

WHAT ABOUT HANDBAGS?

Are women's handbags hygienic? Dr. Samuel Standard, associate professor of surgery at New York University, says, "No!"

"Anyone who has seen a powder puff," says Dr. Standard, "pulled out of lady's handbag, containing loose change, fingered dollar bills, newspaper clippings, tobacco dust and handkerchiefs, clean or otherwise, must have looked in awe at the perspired face and forehead were daubed fiercely by a practiced hand." He calls this a good way to get skin infections.

The doctor has a drastic suggestion for a substitute. He recommends soap and warm water.

There's a growing shortage of petroleum, but nearly everybody seems to expect more miracles and goes right on wasting.

Much of the harm in the world is done by people with good ends in view who believe that the end justifies the means.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

In Denver, Colo., a war veteran started to put an ad in the classified section of the Post. He was startled to have the newspaper's advertising director step up to him and hand him a $50 bill. It was a "bonus" the veteran drew because his ad had the luck to be the

THE REPUBLICAN REACTION

It is one thing for the President to make a proposal; it is quite another for Congress to accept it. Mr. Roosevelt had a Congress of his own for much of his Presidential career. He introduced what he called "must" legislation and his measures were rushed through, often without even being read.

Today it is altogether a different story. Both the Senate and the House have Republican majorities and an investigating committee is chaired by a Republican. Therefore what the President proposed, he will not get through. Although it is likely that stop-gap financial aid to Europe and China will be passed before Christmas, few of the President's ten-point program will come out of Committee by then; most of it will never come out of Committee while this Congress is in session. Such measures as limitations upon private credit and the continuation of control of rents may receive favorable action, but the restoration of OPA in any form seems out of question.

Senator Taft, who speaks not only for himself but for his party as Chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, answered Mr. Truman on OPA and such measures in advance of the President's message to Congress. He said:

"The President himself had removed nearly all price control before the Republicans took over on January 1 of this year, although he could have continued it in many fields until July 1, 1947. Up to June there was reasonable belief that prices and wages had reached a point of stabilization—until the failure of the corn crop, the failure of European crops, and the tremendous effect of a greatly expanded export demand. Since Congress adjourned prices have resumed their rise, particularly in the agricultural field. I fully agree with the President that the situation is a serious one for many families in this country and that definite changes in government policy are called for, most of them executive rather than legislative."

The Republicans hold that the President possesses powers which he will not use, such as curbs on exports and the control of the issuance of currency, both of which are major factors in the current inflation. The failure of the President fully to use delegated authority does not encourage the delegation of additional authority. In fact, rather than giving him what Mr. Truman himself called the "police state," the Republicans are likely to investigate the use of delegated powers, particularly in relationship to government hoarding of food while requesting the public not to make purchases as though there were a shortage.

Taft makes the point, more politely of course, that since Bretton Woods, the American people were lied to by the Administration, which over-dramatized each request for funds and over-promised its probable accomplishment. At the time the International Bank and International Fund were organized at the cost of $6,000,000,000 to the American taxpayer, Taft says, "... we were told by the Treasury Department, loans to Great Britain would be wholly unnecessary. As I said at that time, the Fund was utterly unsuited to the problems of the world at that time. It is now only serving the purpose of distributing a few billion dollars around the world without reference to merit or to need. These dollars are coming back to the United States to force our prices up."

"In spite of the Treasury Department we were soon faced with a four billion dollar British loan. Again we were told it was necessary to save the world and would surely do so. Britain itself did not require so much for exports to the United States, but the loan was to make Sterling a medium of world exchange and re-establish world trade. Today the loan is nearly gone and the problems of Britain are apparently as great as they were when it was granted."

The Republicans feel that the over-dramatization of issues must stop. They will not be rushed. They will pay not the slightest attention to the irrational propaganda of the Simpson Committee. They will investigate, scrutinize, analyze and legislate slowly and with as much wisdom as they and their Democratic allies can bring to bear on the subject. As for the long-term Marshall Plan—it is a long way off. (Copyright, 1947, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

LEANNESS — UNDERWEIGHT

A physician reminding an overweight friend of the dangers of excess fat was reminded that a visit to any hospital would show that very few, if any, patients were fat; they were underweight, in fact.

This is true because loss of weight is probably the most common sign of disease. Infection of any kind, or an overactive thyroid gland, can cause all the body processes to work harder, manufacture more heat and use or burn up the body tissues—thus causing weight loss.

There are, however, many thin or lean individuals in which no infection or overactive thyroid gland is present, and the physician must look farther to find the cause of this leanness. It may take much time and a thorough physical examination aided by X-ray, laboratory and other tests before the physician can be sure that no underlying disease—tuberculosis, goiter, anemia or others—is the cause.

Where there is no apparent cause for the leanness, no complications, the following signs are usually present and the condition called malnutrition. There is loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting, weakness, sleeplessness, lack of control of bowel and bladder, breathlessness on slight exertion, and poor resistance to infection. There is loss of fat in its usual places, especially under the skin and among the organs in the abdomen which depend upon fat to hold them in their proper positions—muscles are wasted, blood pressure low, temperature below normal and blood thin. These conditions may, in turn, interfere with the proper workings of the various glands—pituitary, adrenal, thyroid—so that they become overactive and use or burn up, first, fat and then other tissues.

The treatment of leanness depends upon the cause, and where the cause is found and corrected an increase in food or rest is usually effective in increasing weight.

In serious or dangerous cases of leanness, treatment is absolute rest in bed, blood transfusions, liquid feedings every hour of rich nourishing foods containing plenty of vitamins and minerals. The younger discovered amino acids, rich in protein, are especially helpful in these cases.

Overweight and Underweight

It has been well said that weight is one of the clearest methods of knowing one's health. Send today for Dr. Barton's booklet entitled "Overweight and Underweight," enclosing 10 cents and a 3-cent stamp to cover cost of handling and mailing, to The Bell Syndicate, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. millionth placed this year in the paper's classified pages.

This is a device being widely used. The umpteenth visitor at an art museum, at a big city carnival, suddenly finds he has stepped over an invisible line to win a prize he had not expected.

In the case of the Denver newspaper, the goal of the millionth ad was reached seven weeks earlier this year than last. So in every way it must pay to advertise! Certainly that war veteran thinks so.

"This Is Where I Stand on the Matter, Mr. President"

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

BY HAL BOYLE

New York, (AP)—A man with a bright idea here is making a fine fat living by giving away $1,000,000 a year.

He does it by making other people pay him for the privilege of donating their products to giggling women. All he gives himself is advice.

The man is George Kamen, a shrewd 44-year-old "specialist" in fine clothing for themselves or members of their families. The two firms sponsoring the program and the women who paid admission to see it footed the bills for the 24-hour queues.

Then Kamen thought up the idea of letting manufacturers contribute further to the lady's happiness by donating washing machines, refrigerators, diamonds, coffee brewers, furs—in exchange for a mention of the firm's product on the air and $50.

This made the "queen" happy, the manufacturer happy, and Kamen happy—because he got the $50, or a big chunk of it. As the program now gives away forty to fifty products a week, that comes to a lot of $50 bills in a year.

Kamen has eleven assistants to help him fill the one-day queen's major wish.

Even Found Husband
"The secret of our business life lies in establishing contacts," he said. "There is hardly anything they can ask we can't get."

His organization even found a husband for one woman, and has flopped only once. An extremely small woman who said she never in her life had been able to find stockings her size, asked for new ones. But it was during the war and Kamen found it impossible to have some specially made.

He arranged to build an extra room in one lady's house but now he lives in one constant dread: The winner might ask me to find her a new apartment," he shuddered.

Find Your Fortune In A Deck Of Cards

"What has fortune in store for me?"—a provoking question and you can answer it, in fun, anyway.

The next time there's a party, you can emerge as the Grand Oracle. All that's needed is a deck of cards and a set of polished answers as the cards turn up.

Have the inquirer first shuffle and cut the cards. Then put the three top cards face up on the table.

Black cards predict a bleak outlook—cloudy future—trouble ahead.

The black king or queen, however, do foretell good fortune, in the shape of faithful friends who will stand by you even should dark days come.

The black jack on the other hand warns you to be on your guard. You have an unsuspected enemy!

Red cards signify good fortune and a rosy atmosphere of love and prosperity.

When a mixture of the two colors shows up, it's up to you as Grand Oracle to combine their meanings.

What do the cards say about jealousy, jobs, financial position, marriage—all the questions that are fun at a party? See our Reader Service booklet No. 65 for fortune-telling answers to use with cards, tea leaves, dominoes, the stars.

Send 25c (coin) for "Let Me Tell Your Fortune" to The Kingston Daily Freeman, Reader Service, 243 West 17th Street, New York 11, N. Y. Print name, address with zone, booklet title and No. 65.

Life's Tiny Strands

By FRANK TRIPP

It was in Appleton's Second Reader when I went to school—the picture and thrilling story of a man atop a high brick stack, with no way to get down. By any chance do you remember it?

There he was, way up high, and the rope which took him there had slipped through its pulley and lay on the ground. A group of people, clustered near, were looking up.

There seemed no way he could escape. The whole class pondered his plight and imagined him staying there to die, else jumping to his death.

Then the monosyllabic story told how he managed. It left a suggestion of resourcefulness and ingenuity in little minds, to linger through the years and bear fruit for those who had a bent to see things through against big odds.

In the group that stood beside the stack was the workman's wife. When all else had failed she had thought—the socks she'd knitted for him.

She cupped her hands and called to him. "John, the socks. Haul them!" John set himself to work. Slowly the yarn descended to the ground. A string was attached. John pulled it up; then a stronger cord, and finally the rope he'd lost was in his hands, put through the blocks and he came down. If John had worn nylons he might be there still.

Have you ever wondered how treacherous distances were spanned before men flew and got most any place they wished? How were the first great bridges suspended across deep chasms, where no scaffolds could be built?

I looked that up and found that in one case an answer as simple as the workman's socks made the first crossing for a famous bridge that brought friendly peoples closer.

It was the first bridge to cross Niagara's Gorge, a suspension bridge near Lewiston. A boy named John Roebling, who had a substantial sum to a boy those days and Homan Walska traveled from Lincoln, Nebraska, to earn it. The money was a reward offered to the first boy who could fly his kite across the gorge so its string could be fastened to a tree on either side. As with the sock yarn, stouter cords were pulled across, then a rope strong enough to stretch the first heavy suspension cable from American to British soil.

Thus tiny strands formed the foundation of great engineering feats which people use and view from day to day and give no thought to how they came about or how primitive may have been the first steps of their creation.

Nature often plays big part in jobs machinery cannot do. One time a huge steel tank eight feet in diameter and 20 feet long had to be dropped on end in a hole slightly larger than its girth.

There was no way to grasp it by tackle; no way to place it without crushing its end from the long drop to the bottom of the pit.

An ingenious builder would not be whipped. He had the pit filled with blocks of ice. The mammoth tank was skidded on the ice end up. The workmen went about something else. Slowly, safely and exactly placed, nature took the tank to its foundation.

Often there are simple answers to problems in one's daily life; but fretters ignore them and search instead for a ponderous solution that a piece of twine would solve. A bit of engineering genius, inborn in many men, gives common answers, often found in the resourcefulness of their fathers. Their lives roll on—sublime, serene.

Such people live to ripe old age, through calm, contented years. They waste no precious hours on woes that cannot befall them.

Worry kills, the experts say; not always, though. There was the old maid, past 70, who sat crying her eyes out one rainy day because, she said:

"I was thinking: what if I had married and had a little girl and she was playing round the rain dials and fell in and drowned. Boo-hoo, ain't life just one worry after another?"

Working with John Melkle, a graduate of the school, Davis was engaged at the time of his death in raising a $10,000,000 endowment for Mooseheart. About $1,500,000 had been collected when he died.

Davis' wife, the former Jean Rodenbaugh of Pittsburgh, died in 1940. He had four daughters, Jewel and Jean—who lived with him in Washington—Jane of New York city and Joan of Gaithersburg, Md. He also had one son, James, Jr., a lawyer in Philadelphia.

Dovey referred to what he called serious disagreements among young commission members as to the need of a state university. He declared he personally doubted that the postwar doubling of college enrollment in New York would continue until 1960 as he said, the Education Department maintained.

The Legislature's Democratic minority leaders, who often have criticized Dovey's creation of the Young Commission as a "stall," introduced legislation last winter to provide establishment of a state university at an estimated cost of $50,000,000.

Arnold told the committee: "We relied on what we considered General Meyers' word that he no longer held directly or indirectly, investments from which he might profit from his procurement authority."

"On the evidence before you, a high-ranking officer has disgraced his uniform and rank. He was able to do these things without detection by the military."

Tuberculosis Poster Delivered to City Hall

Boy Scout First Class Walter Short, 77 Foxhall avenue, of Troop No. 6 called at the mayor's office at city hall yesterday to deliver a poster bearing the message, "Protect Your Home from Tuberculosis."

The poster, one of several being distributed throughout the county by Boy Scouts of city and county troops on behalf of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association, will be displayed during the 41st annual Christmas Seal sale, which begins Nov. 24th and continues until Christmas to raise funds to finance the association's projects.

Like the 1947 Christmas Seal, the poster features a rural American scene showing a team of oxen pulling a sled loaded with Christmas trees.

Thanking Scout Short for the poster, the mayor's secretary, Robert L. Rhinehart, said that it would be prominently displayed in city hall. He also commended the youth for performing this service for the community.

"When you distribute posters and I buy Christmas Seals, you are doing your part as a Scout and as a citizen," the secretary said. "When we support the work of the tuberculosis association we do a service to our entire community. The campaign against tuberculosis is of such importance to our welfare that it deserves the support of every man, woman and child in this city."

Drive in Ulster County Townships Now in Progress

Joseph H. Craig, treasurer of the Ulster County Campaign for the National Service Fund of the Disabled American Veterans reports that as of Friday the total contributions deposited comes from Kingston, since the drives throughout the county are now in progress, and money from these smaller campaigns will come in later.

Dr. George C. Rifenbary, chairman of the Kingston Division of the campaign, today referred to a report which the Veterans Administration released in Washington on November 17. The report states that at present there are 2,890,000 disabled veterans on the Veterans Administration rolls. This number does not include those veterans still in military hospitals. All of these nearly three million men must make some sort of readjustment, because of a disability, great or small.

Eleven Regional Offices of the Veterans Administration report they have a backlog of a more than four months' waiting on disability cases pending adjudication. The backlog in the remaining six regional offices is a nearly two months' work load.

His inability of the regional offices to keep up with the hundreds of daily demands is a big reason why General Bradley and the Veterans Administration recognize and appreciate the help of accredited organizations such as D.A.V. Work can be cleared far more rapidly with the aid of experienced service officers.

The D.A.V. office in each Regional Veterans Administration Headquarters is more than an advisory and referral agency. It is a "one stop" organization which renders a complete service to the ex-service men. It is easy to see that this assistance is invaluable now when thousands of disabled men are leaving the hospitals, and it is a matter of the greatest urgency that they are enabled to make as complete a transition as possible to productive civilian life.

major factor in his winning the corporation counsel post, it was said by Republican leaders.

The man who will handle Kingston's legal affairs is a graduate of St. Peter's Parochial School, Kingston High School, Fordham University and the law school of that institution. His practical training was done in the law office of Walter L. Miller, local attorney.

When Kingston Post, 350, American Legion, sought a commander to carry on the successful work done by Ernest A. Steuding, former lieutenant colonel in the army during World War 2, and now superintendent of the Kingston City Board of Public Works, Attorney Connelly won the nomination and was elected to head the activities of the organization this year. He and his committee on November 11 staged one of the most successful Victory Balls ever promoted by the Legion, drawing more than 2,000 patrons at the municipal auditorium.

A modest young man, the new appointee confined his comment to, "I shall give my best efforts to the job in the interest of Kingston taxpayers."

Brooklyn Front Office Says Kingston Dodgers No Longer Exist

Branca, The Basketeer, Here Thursday

Rowland and Kingston Directors Reject Chance to Buy Franchise

Although Ralph Branca, the pride of Mount Vernon, is a national baseball personality—21 games won for the 1947 Brooklyn Dodgers—he is also a topnotch basketball player.

Kingston basketball followers will get a chance to see Branca in action on Thanksgiving Night when he leads his Mount Vernon Legionnaires against the Kingston Legionnaires in one of the top attractions of the infant basketball season.

While at New York University, Branca played varsity basketball on nationally ranked Violets squads that included the renowned Sid Tannenbaum and Frank Mangiapane, among others.

Basketball is Branca's off-season hobby while he pursues his studies in physical education at N.Y.U. He led the team to 15 victories in 19 starts against independent opposition in the East during the 1946-1947 campaign.

Branca has surrounded himself with a stellar array of Westchester county and N.Y.U. basketball players who have an excellent scholastic background and are topnotch performers.

Manager Andy Murphy III expressed satisfaction with the turnout for the Legionnaires' opener against the Beacon Varsity this week and said he felt the team would click on the floor and at the boxoffice.

Commander Connolly and the American Legion membership are not sponsoring basketball for profit," Murphy said. "The Legion is interested in bringing a good brand of basketball to Kingston to compete against home town players."

Murphy further stated that the Legion does hope to put the pro basketball on a paying basis and at least break even on the promotion.

The Legionnaires were pleased with the turnout for the first game," Murphy continued, "as we had anticipated a smaller turnout. The game was not a financial success but the Legion intends to start along with the team so long as an exorbitant sum is not dropped in the event of a rocky season."

Roster of the Branca Stars includes: Frank Casucci—Reserve forward with N.Y.U. in 1943 and 1946. During service in the Navy was a member of the Hollister N.A.S. team in California. Last year he averaged 19.5 points with the All Stars.

Johnny Branca—Brother of the famous Ralph. Now attending N.Y.U. While in service was a member of the Hendrick Field Bombers, service champions of Southern Florida.

Louis "Red" Calgano—Left Westchester county high school seniors in 1943. Last year was a member of the N.Y.U. team and then transferred to Iona College, New Rochelle.

Dodger farmhand, and last year pitched for Danville in the Three-Eye League. Was a three-letter man at White Plains and now attends Iona.

Charles Boggs—Regarded as the greatest athlete ever to graduate from Margaretville High School. Was a three-letter man, captain of the football, baseball and basketball teams in his senior year.

John Brescia—Former Edison High, Mount Vernon, basketball and baseball star, now a physical education major and varsity catcher at N.Y.U. A great baseball and basketball prospect.

Hank Walsh—A holdover from last year's Branca's Stars. Hank is a Bronx boy and member of the Manhattan College squad.

The Kingston Dodgers ceased to exist in either fact or fiction last night, when members of the Board of Directors refused to take action on a Brooklyn proposal that local interests purchase the franchise.

In a letter addressed to Clarence S. Rowland, president of the club, Branch Rickey, Jr. announced that Brooklyn wished to sell the franchise and offered it to Mr. Rowland. The local sports benefactor notified Mr. Rickey he was not interested.

Last night's action climaxes weeks of indecision and speculation regarding the future of the Dodgers who operated under a cloud during 1947, and suffered severe financial losses despite brilliant artistic achievements on the field.

Four members attended the directors' meeting, Rowland said, and unanimously rejected the Brooklyn offer. Sentiment of the group was that professional baseball would have a better chance to survive in Kingston if it were of at least Class B classification like the Poughkeepsie Giants.

The Freeman has learned from a reliable source that Addison Jones and Harry L. Edson are dickering with outside interests in an effort to swing a Class B, Colonial League franchise to Kingston for 1948. Neither Mr. Jones nor Mr. Edson has yet made a public statement on their negotiations but it is reported they are continuing.

Branch Rickey, Jr. explained Brooklyn's final decision on the Class D setup in identical letters to Mr. Rowland and Charles Tiano, Freeman sports editor.

The action was not unexpected and it has been known for several weeks that several Pennsylvania towns, notably Allentown, Shamokin and others have been bidding for N.A.L. franchises. The Brooklyn front office knows that it will be an easy matter to transfer the Dodgers to a Pennsylvania town or sell outright to one of those towns.

Was "Fore-Doomed" Rickey told the Freeman that he realized as far back as last spring that Dodger operations in Kingston were a "fore-doomed venture" but Brooklyn was determined to keep pledges it had made to certain people in the city.

He knew at the time when the public hearing was held in Kingston, Rickey said, "that the operation for Kingston was a fore-doomed venture, but we were already pledged to the league and to various men in Kingston; and I had not expected the type of meeting which resulted."

Resolved to keep our part of the bargain, that is give the City of Kingston the best possible operation we could for the 1947 season, but I did not expect to come out whole financially."

Rickey went on to disagree with sentiments expressed at the Hotel Statuette meeting which was called to meter support for retention of the Dodgers. At that time the Dodgers were charged with poor promotion.

Nothing Could Help "In a situation such as we had in Kingston last year," Rickey continued, "neither a different manager, business manager, nor ball club, nor Phineas T. Barnum himself could have made the venture successful."

The junior Rickey expressed the hope that Kingston would have professional baseball in 1948, although he emphasized the Dodgers were not interested. He said:

"I do hope that Kingston has baseball this coming year. I think that professional baseball would be accepted more readily now than it was a year ago, and it is a fine city. I wish we could go back but we do have a president and a board of directors, and even if I were so inclined, I am sure that the common sense and prudence on the part of my employers would prohibit any such action."

Operating Loss $25,000 Rickey concluded with the statement that he honestly wished the Dodgers could try operation for another year in Kingston, "but, as I outlined to Mr. Rowland, our loss was approximately $25,000 . . . and that is somewhat too high."

"There are a number of people who have felt that we could come back to Kingston next year and make it pay," he concluded, "and I know that there are quite a number of people who feel that 90 per cent of the blame can be laid at the door of the Dodgers for their failure to have a better business manager or perhaps a better manager, or do better promotional work, etc. . . ."

Water Supply Meeting An open meeting to discuss the possibility of extending the Port Jervis water supply to the Ulster Park area will be held at the Grange Hall in Ulster Park Monday night at 8 o'clock. Edward McCaffery, engineer, will be on hand to discuss plans. A large attendance is expected.

Singing Star

DONALD NOVIS

Patrons of Ahavath Israel Congregation's Thanksgiving eve ball at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium, Wednesday night, November 26, will hear one of the nation's foremost tenors when Donald Novis takes to the microphone.

Among his most popular numbers are Trees, Sweet and Lovely, Always, I Surrender Dear, Diane and his splendid Irish tunes Toora Toora, Mollie Malone and the Irish jig number, Phil the Fluter's Ball.

"Donald Novis is accepted everywhere as a paragon of singing excellence," said Herman G. Rafalowsky, general chairman of the ball, "and it is with great pleasure that I signed him to sing for Ahavath Israel."

The central Broadway clothier whose avocation is bringing name bands and top-flight entertainers to Kingston broke out in a broad smile as he remarked, "Quite a novelty, an Irish tenor at a Jewish ball!" Music will be by Vincent Lopez.

Mr. Novis was born in Hastings, England, of Welsh and Irish parentage. He started out to be a great athlete, but wound up as first rate singer. His friends and neighbors often encouraged him to sing his pleasurable interpretations of old Irish ditties and ballads. That's probably how the shift came about.

It took a lot of urging for him to enter a radio audition contest and was very much surprised when he won over 63,000 contestants. The prize was $6,000 and a radio contract with the National Broadcasting Company. He still continues his interest in sports and enjoys the rating as the best all-around athlete in show business.

He holds a degree in physical education from Whittier College in California.

Audiences flocked to the Paramount Theatre in New York for 26 weeks to hear him, and he was so sensational on the coast that the Coconut Grove in Los Angeles kept him for 18 months. He enjoys distinctive reputation as a splendid musical artist throughout the United States.

Novis was on the radio show with Fibber McGee and Molly for two years, and also was on the air with Jimmy Durante, on the Lucky Strike program, and Battle of the Tenors. His recordings are handled by Victor, Decca and Brunswick. Motion pictures in which he appeared: The Big Broadcast, Slightly Terrified, One Hour With You, Bulldog Drummond and Sweethearts of the U. S. A.

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz, Nov. 21—Mrs. Lillian Shults of Kingston, newly-elected W.C.T.U. president, was the guest speaker at the annual institute of the New Paltz Union held at the home of Miss Ethel Addis Wednesday.

The morning session was opened with Mrs. Raymond Hasbrouck, local president, presiding and Mrs. Willard Jenkins in charge of the devotions with the theme on Thanksgiving. Department work was discussed and work was planned. Miss Lois Betz led in the noon prayer. Box lunches with extra dishes and dessert were provided by Miss Addis and Mrs. Ida Stephens, hostesses for the noon meal.

The afternoon meeting began with devotionals by Miss Betz. The annual roll call followed. Correspondence was read, cards were signed for shut-ins and an Afghan, recently made by local members for the Veterans' Home, was exhibited. The guest speaker then outlined the recommendations and gave a helpful talk on various points of interest. She later answered questions concerning the work. Before her departure refreshments were served and a bouquet was presented to Mrs. Shults in the behalf of the local union. The meeting then continued with highlights from the Union Signal and the lesson from the study book, "The Alcohol Problem," by Deets Pickett, was given by Miss Betz.

Those present, in addition to the members named, were Miss Elizabeth Roosa, Mrs. Charity Van Aulken, Mrs. Albert Wright, Mrs. Leola Palmer, Mrs. Osterhout, Mrs. Anne Decker, Mrs. Eliza Van Vleet and Mrs. Webb Kniffen.

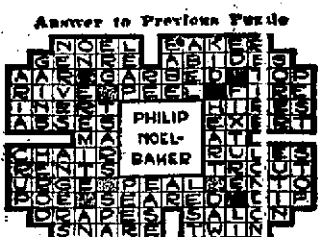

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Aloysius Conway are the parents of a son, Michael Owen, born November 19.

New Paltz friends of Miss Shirley B. Lutin, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lutin, former residents of New Paltz, have received word that Miss Lutin and Stanford Lubow of New York have secured a marriage license and expect to be married in the near future. Miss

Sound Reasoning Leads to Big Slam

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY

Written for NEA Service

Meetings of the National Laws Commission are always a good source of bridge hands. This committee meets once a week to discuss the workability of the laws of contract bridge and possible changes that have been suggested. When the discussion of laws lags, someone starts to talk about a bridge hand.

Lee Hazen of New York brought up today's hand, and his theory on the bidding is interesting. He and his partner were using an ace-showing response to two-bids, so when North responded with two no trump, all Hazen knew was that he did not have the ace of clubs.

Hazen now could have bid three hearts or even three diamonds. But he said that if he bid three hearts he felt that his partner's response would be four clubs. In that case Hazen could have bid four diamonds, and North would then take a choice of one of the three suits South had bid.

However, if North by any chance could bid hearts or diamonds freely, Hazen thought he had a pretty good gamble for seven. That was his reason for bidding three spades, and it paid big dividends when his partner responded with four hearts. Hazen knew that he had five hearts, and the bid of seven hearts was automatic.

Some of those at the meeting did not agree at first with Hazen's bid of three spades, though they were inclined to do so when he explained his reasoning. However, Waldemar von Zedtwitz pointed out that North might have had four small spades and the queen of hearts or queen of diamonds. With such a holding, a sure small slam would be in the making, yet it might have been difficult to bid.

It is nice to pick up big cards, but as P. Hal Sims once remarked, "Don't let them wreck you, make the work for you. Don't start to bid a big hand blindly. Have a sound line of reasoning such as Lee Hazen explained on this hand."

More than 25,000 American Indians were in the U. S. armed forces during World War II.

A fourth of the American Indians on U. S. reservations live in New Mexico and Arizona.
